

SETTING UP ANDFLMSG ON ANDROID

Thursday, November 8, 2018 3:15 PM

First you must allow "Unknown Sources" to install applications because the ANDLFMSG application is not published on the Android APP Store. Every android device can be a little different so you may want to search google for your specific device like this: "How to allow unknown sources on NAME_and_MODEL_Of_Phone"

On my Samsung Note 3 it is:

Settings >

General Tab>

Network connections

-  Airplane mode Go to General
Turn off calling, messaging and data network features.
-  Wi-Fi
Tap to configure.
-  Bluetooth
Tap to configure.
-  Tethering
Share your device's mobile data connection via USB or Bluetooth.
-  Data usage
-  Location

- SIM card is not readable (2:45 PM): Contact your service provider.
- Connected as a media device: Touch for other USB options.
- New from TamithaSkov: One Storm Wanes as Another... (with a video thumbnail).
- Southwest Airlines 1789 (2:46 PM): Arrived 12:49 PM, Assistant.
- AndFlmsg_1.2.1_201705....a.. (2:47 PM): Download complete • 2.60 MB.
- AndFlmsg_1.2.1_201705....a.. (2:46 PM): Download complete • 2.60 MB.

At the bottom right of the notification shade is a 'CLEAR' button. The email address 'aaronatsmokinjones@gmail.com' is visible at the bottom of the notification list.
